

Orange County ACM SIGCHI

Monthly meeting

August 21, 2003, 5-7:00 PM

Held at Alteer in Irvine

Title: Activating the Social Workscape: Using Social Networks to Enhance Collaboration

OCCHI is honored to present Danyel Fisher PhD student at UCI, in the Interactive and Collaborative Technologies group, as our guest speaker. Danyel's research includes online conversation and interaction, especially through email and shared information spaces. Danyel will discuss an approach to building systems with a stronger understanding of collaboration.

Most work carried out online is collaborative to some degree, involving activities that must be coordinated with other people. However, most user interfaces are resolutely single-user. Danyel explores designs in which the single-user experience is extended to incorporate the wider social frame in which work takes place.

Working with Dr. Paul Dourish, his approach centers on the ideas of social networks and temporal rhythms, and so they have developed a prototype that shows repeated temporal and social patterns within email and other communication media.

The meeting is free and open to anyone.
